

WRISE™

Writing Instruction for Schoolwide Excellence

The skill being taught should decide the page.

WRISE™ Literacy Exercise Books are designed around the student, the skill being taught and curriculum expectations. Five graduated dotted-midline rulings support handwriting development from formation and placement to fluency and automaticity.

Five graduated rulings

Select by skill and proficiency, not by year level alone.

A purposeful dotted midline

Scaffolds size, placement and alignment while skills develop.

The learning made visible

Why the page matters

Handwriting is a motor-memory skill that needs to be taught to automaticity. When forming letters is slow or effortful, students use attention that would otherwise support idea generation, vocabulary, sentence construction and text structure.

The dotted midline scaffolds letter formation, relative size, placement and alignment. As proficiency develops, teachers select a finer ruling.

Designed for the whole literacy block

Use WRISE™ for handwriting and transcription, phonics and spelling, dictation and formative assessment, sentence and text-level writing, vocabulary, reading responses and other curriculum learning.
